FORTY DETECTIVES HUNTING MURDERERS OF LITTLE GIRL

Minute Description of Them Given by Mrs. Simonson, in Whose Back Yard They Washed Off Blood Stains.

Declaring that the crime was the blackest that had ever been drawn to his attention, Police Commissioner Bingham organized and sent out an extraordinary detail of detectives and officers to-day to run down the slayer or slayers of fifteen-year-old Amelia Charlotta Staffeldt, who was assaulted and stabbed to death on the old Seitz farm at Elmhurst yesterday afternoon. Borough Inspector Flood, Inspector Nally, of Queens; Capt. McCauley, chief of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, and forty detectives were assigned to devote all their time to the case until they had hunted down the criminals.

The countryside about the scene of the crime swarmed with police to-day and several valuable clues have been obtained. It is now pretty certain that two miscreants were involved in the crime, and an excellent description of them has been obtained. The police are divided in opinion as to whether the men escaped to this city or are hiding in the swamps or woods in the Astoria section.

Squads of detectives have been sent out in every direction in an effort to record of themselves, their friends and relatives have been obtained. Two members of a gang of workmen employed grading the roads near Elmhurst, who disappeared yesterday, are
